MIT Technology Review Arabia included Mustafa Jamaa, a computer science professor teaching at Birzeit University, in its recently released “30 Leading Arab Experts in AI” list for 2022.

Jamaa, who serves as the director of Birzeit University’s Ph.D. Program Computer Science, ranks 25 Arabs renowned for being leading experts in the field of AI through their public, private, or academic sector positions in various regional and global organizations and institutions.

The winners are selected for playing a key role in increasing the adoption of AI technologies, creating AI startups, or driving research in the field. Their contributions cover various disciplines including natural language processing, robotics, artificial vision, machine learning, internet of things, big data, chatbots, and more.

Jamaa was a Fulbright visiting professor at the University of Buffalo in the USA (2014-2017), a Marie Curie Fellow at the University of Cyprus (2007-2009), and a senior research scientist at Vrije Universiteit Brussel (1999-2007), where he completed his Masters (2002) and PhD (early 2005). He has won several prestigious awards including, among others, the Shamor Arab Researchers Award in Technology, Mohamed Bin Rashid Award for Arabic Language, and Google Faculty Research Award.
